

My research interests largely lie in the intersections of literary modernism and postmodernism vis-a-vis Twentieth and Twenty-First Century American Literature. I have written extensively on the fiction of Saul Bellow and Philip Roth examining how religion and sexuality inform their works. Besides this, I'm also interested in studying how classics, be these in the Western or Eastern traditions, continue to exercise the contemporary cultural and literary imagination.

Gurumurthy Neelakantan

<gn@iitk.ac.in>